Introduction

1. My name is Dwight Steward and I am an economist and statistician. As an economist and statistician, I have provided research reports, expert witness testimony, and consultation on issues involving police racial profiling and use of force, discrimination, and economic damage related issues in federal and state courts. In this case, I have been retained by the Office of the Harris County Attorney to perform a statistical analysis of the allegation that the Harris County Sheriff's Department has a pattern and practice of employing excessive use of force against inmates in its detention and inmate processing areas.

2. In addition to serving as an expert witness, I have performed extensive research and lectured widely on the statistical analysis of police racial profiling and use of force. I have worked with community groups and police oversight organizations, such as the Texas NAACP, ACLU, and the Texas Criminal Justice Coalition, as well as with police organizations such as the Police Executive Research Forum (PERF), the Austin Office of Police Monitor, and the Dallas Area Rapid Transit (DART) on issues related to the statistical analysis of police racial profiling and the collection of police-public contact data.

3. I have also organized and participated in numerous roundtable discussions with police executives, state legislators, and community leaders on the issues of police racial profiling and use of force and provided testimony to the Texas State Legislature concerning police racial profiling legislation. Our firm currently serves as a state-wide repository for the annual racial profiling reports submitted by Texas police agencies and our statistical research on police racial profiling in Texas has received numerous national media cites and references by researchers. In addition, I have held teaching positions in the Department of Economics at the University of Texas at Austin, the Red McCombs School of Business at the University of Texas at Austin, and in the College of Business at Sam Houston State University. My full curriculum vita is attached to this report.

4. It is my opinion that there is no statistical evidence to support the allegation that the Harris County Sherriff's Department had a pattern and practice of using excessive force against inmates in the Harris County processing and detention centers. My analysis is discussed in more detail in the following sections of this report. The documents I used to construct my analysis are listed in Exhibit A and in the text and footnotes in this report. I reserve the right to amend and supplement this report.

Methodology and Findings

5. As mentioned above, it is my understanding that the plaintiff in this case alleges that Harris County Sherriff's Department personnel had a pattern and practice of using excessive force against inmates at the processing and detention center. To provide a statistical analysis of the allegations I examined several aspects of use of force by Harris County personnel in these areas. Specifically, I analyzed the frequency of use of force, incidents of excessive use of force, and the injuries resulting from the use of force at the Harris County detention and processing center. My statistical findings are as follows.

6. First, the number of use of force incidents by Harris County personnel is consistent with other police agencies nationally. As shown in Figure 1, the rate in which use of force is employed against Harris County inmates is statistically consistent, and numerically lower, than the average rate of police use of force nationally. According to Harris County use of force statistics, force was used against approximately 0.06% to 0.12% of the over 100,000 inmates at Harris County detention centers in the 2003 to 2005 time period. In contrast, generally accepted and publicly available use of force data from the United States Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) shows that similar force was used at a higher rate nationally. This data shows that force was used in approximately 0.66% to 0.96% of police-public contacts.

7. Second, the excessive use of force rate is substantially lower than the rate at other police agencies nationally. The Harris County use of force information shows that there were 5 instances from 2001 to 2005 where the use of force by its personnel was determined by the Harris County Sheriff's Department to be excessive and/or inappropriate. As shown in Figure 2, the 2001 to 2005 excessive use of force rate is approximately 0.86 excessive force incidences per 200 officers. Police management data shows that nationally the rate of excessive use of force is generally higher on average. Law Enforcement Management and Administrative Statistics (LEMAS) data from the BJS shows that the typical police agency experiences approximately 2.0 substantiated incidences of excessive use of force per 200 officers.

8. Third, the number of inmate injuries resulting from the use of force by Harris County personnel is statistically consistent and generally lower than the injury rate of other police agencies nationally. Harris County use of force data for the 2005 time period shows that when force was used inmates were injured in approximately 27.8% of the incidents. In contrast, International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) data on the use of force injury rate for other police agencies report an average use of force injury rate of approximately 38%. Figure 3 shows the actual and expected number of injuries for the Harris County inmate and detention centers.

Summary

9. In sum, it is my opinion that there is no statistical evidence to support the allegation that Harris County Sheriff's Department had a pattern and practice of using excessive force against inmates in the Harris County processing and detention centers. My analysis shows that Harris County's frequency of use of force, excessive use of force incidents, and the injuries resulting from the use of force are consistent with, or lower than, other police agencies.

Harris County's inmate processing personnel use of force rates are statistically consistent with average police use of force rates nationally.

Methodology notes:

1. Actual use of force rates are the number of Harris County use of force incidents divided by the number of inmates handled in that year.
2. Expected use of force rates are obtained from the U.S. Bureau of Justice Statistics' National Crime Victimization Survey (NCVS)

Excessive use of force rates by Harris County inmate processing personnel are substantially lower than that of other U.S. police agencies

Figure 2. Harris County substantiated excessive use of force complaint rates for 2001-2005 versus other U.S. police agencies

Methodology notes:

1. A sustained excessive use of force complaint is one where it has been determined by police agency officials or an oversight board that excessive force was used by the police personnel.
2. Harris County substantiated excessive force rates are obtained from HCSO Use of Force Analysis Reports, 2001 to 2005.
3. Sustained excessive force rates for U.S. police agencies is obtained from Law Enforcement Management and Administrative Statistics (LEMAS) on Citizen Complaints on Police Use of Force.

The injury rate for Harris County inmates in use of force incidents is substantially lower than that of other U.S. police agencies

Figure 3. Actual and expected inmate injuries resulting from Harris County inmate processing use of force incidents, 2001 to 2005

Methodology notes:

1. The actual number of inmate injuries is obtained from HCSO Use of Force Analysis Reports, 2001 to 2005.
2. The expected number of injuries is obtained by multiplying the number of use of force incidents by the use of force injury rate of U.S. police agencies
3. The use of force injury rate of U.S. police agencies (0.38) is obtained from the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) National Database Project on Police Use of Force.

Dr. Dwight Steward is an expert in statistical and economic analysis of labor and employment related issues. He has experience in consulting and litigation involving employment discrimination and wage and hour matters —on behalf of both defendants and plaintiffs.

Dr. Steward has also developed and implemented innovative methodologies to assist attorneys in the assessment of economic damages in cases involving death or catastrophic injury. As an expert witness, he has authored hundreds of expert reports, been deposed in over 100 cases and testified in over 30 trials. He has also testified in hearings, arbitrations, city council meetings, and before the Texas state legislature.

Dr. Steward writes regularly on employment related issues and frequently speaks to economic and legal professional groups. Dr. Steward's research on the statistical analysis of police racial profiling has received national attention.

In addition, Dr. Steward previously taught in the Department of Economics and the Red McCombs School of Business as the University of Texas at Austin and at Sam Houston State University. He taught numerous courses in economics, statistics, and corporate finance and in 2002 was voted the teacher of the year by the UT's largest business and professional organization.
